

3. Financial Services Programmes

Financial services to poor community is one of the main component of multi-sectoral development. There is no alternative except bringing change in life of the poor. Financial security is most essential for making development sustainable. Thus, PROSHIKA emphasizes on the financial development of the organized group members. This program is helpful in creating opportunity of self-employment. One of the prominent aspects of this program is to create job opportunity for unemployed community people. This program includes following components-

- Microcredit activity
- Developing small entrepreneur
- PROSHIKA savings scheme
- Economic-socio security program
- PROSHIKA double benefit savings schemes and
- PROSHIKA special savings scheme.